CHEWING TOBACCO.

The Grip With Which This Habit Holds Its Victims.

Every slave of the weed will know better than I do how much truth exists in a story told me a few evenings ago, by a well known committing magistrate in New York.

We were seated at a club table discussing various kinds of dissipations, especially the fascination that liquor and gambling are said to have for men who cannot resist the impulse to gratify one or the other of these passions. The judge spoke:

"In my opinion the most overmastering craving known to our race is that for chewing tobacco. Opium in some forms may be as bad, but I am sure it isn't worse. A few weeks ago I met a pale, rose in his sent and held up his hand as a sign that he desired to ask me a question. I motioned to him to speak up."

"I say, good Mr. Judge, will you do me a great favor?"

"Certainly, if it be within my power," I replied.

"I hear my tobacco will be cut off. Cannot you make my term six months or even a year if I am allowed to have chewing tobacco?"

The judge had to explain that he couldn't do anything of that sort. He relieved the prisoner's mind on the tobacco question by telling him that if he was a habitual chewer the prison physician would order a small quantity of the weed for him daily.

"Never did I see a greater change in a human face," concluded his honor.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Preparing an Alibi.

If culture remains confined within the splendidly bound volumes of the new library that has just been bought by a New Yorker it will not be the fault of the rich man's secretary. He is doing everything he can to let it loose.

"I am cutting the leaves in all the books," he said. "The chances are nobody belonging to the family will ever look inside these books, but the boss has friends who may go snooping around through the library sometimes. In case they do he doesn't want them to gain the impression that literature is negative. In this house, so I am making sure they will at least find the leaves cut."—Exchange.

The Finest City in Great Britain.

Edinburgh may be noted for its learning and for beauty of situation. Dublin may rank as one of the most beautiful cities in the world. Oxford may boast its colleges and Canterbury its picturesque streets and grand old cathedral. But London stands supreme—the finest city of Great Britain.—London Captain.

"No money in gardening? Why, I know a man who cleared $30,000 last summer from less than an acre." "Impossible! Utterly absurd!" "Not at all. You see, it was a roof garden."—Boston Transcript.

Meade Case in Court Next Week.

The most interesting case to come up at the May term of Circuit Court, which will convene here next Monday, May 24, will be the Meade will case.

Among those from a distance who are here in connection with this case is Mr. J. M. Meade, of Topeka, Kansas, engineer of the eastern lines of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway. Mr. Meade is an old White Post boy and a nephew of the late Capt. David Meade whose will is being hotly contested by the Meade heirs versus Hubert Snowden and others.

Captain Meade died without children and his wife died about a year afterward.

Three alleged wills have been produced at previous hearings in the case, one of which Judge Harrison refused probate on account of its not being properly attested. The other two are said to be conflicting.

Hon. Marshall McCormick represents the Meade heirs, while Hon. A. Moore, Jr., represents the Snowden interests.

Where the South's Millions Go

In the last nine years, according to the recent report of the Insurance Commissioner of South Carolina, the people of that State have paid the insurance premiums amounting to more than $12,400,000, while the losses collected have been only about half that amount. The life premiums paid in the same time amounted to $23,000,000, and the losses only one-third that amount.

It is pointed out that in these same nine years the Southern States have sent North more than a fifth of one billion dollars.

Many millions of dollars are sent from the State of Virginia every year to the North for insurance premiums. Some of these millions go across the ocean to Liverpool and London.

The great wonder is that the people of the South do not patronize home companies with their insurance. If there are States or communities without insurance companies it would be an easy matter to form them.

If the people of the North can get a quarter of a billion dollars of southern money for insurance in less than a decade, why cannot the Southern States establish their own companies and by patronizing them keep these hundreds of millions of dollars at home?

There can be no negative answer.

Keep the millions at home and let them make more millions instead of sending them North to millionaires.—Roanoke Times.

Many weak, nervous women have been restored to health by Foley's Kidney Remedy as it stimulates the kidneys so they will eliminate waste matter from the blood. Impurities depress the nerves, causing nervous exhaustion and other ailments. Commence today and you will soon be well. Pleasant to take. J. C. Jones & Co., Millwood, Va., R. C. Green, Boyce, Va.

Fine Pictures at the Lyric

The quality of pictures being shown at the Lyric Theater have been greatly improved, and the big crowds attest the popularity of the movement.

Monday night Messina, Italy, after the great earthquake, was shown in clear moving pictures.

Last night the immense audience witnessed the fight between Battling Nelson and Joe Gans at Colma, California. The pictures of the fight are very clear and show every movement of the men.

The pictures for tonight will include "The Hunchback" and "The Mad Miner," two of the best moving-picture dramas ever shown.

Tomorrow (Thursday) night the subjects will be "Jerusalem" and "David and Goliath."

The service at The Lyric is by far the best ever seen here, and the show deserves the patronage of all.

Land Roller Frightens Horse.

A heavy metal land roller frightened the horse driven by Mrs. T. A. Royston and Mrs. James Royston, sister of Mr. W. L. Elsea, near the Depot last Saturday afternoon, and the animal made a quick turn, upset the buggy and dragged the ladies a short distance before he could be caught.

Both ladies were painfully bruised and cut, Mrs. James Royston's face being badly disfigured.

Dr. J. E. Harris was summoned and rendered the necessary medical attention, and the ladies were taken to their homes.

Fortunately, no bones were broken.

The buggy was practically demolished.

Tearing Down Old Landmark.

The force of men of Pulliam Brothers, the contractors, are demolishing the old Thompson & Ogden shop on Upper Main street, preparatory to erecting several neat cottages on the property.

Pulliam Brothers recently purchased the property, and state that they will erect several five and seven-room cottages for sale or rent.

The building which is being torn down is one of the largest frame structures in the Corporation and has been standing for many years.

On Friday of this week, May 21, the Literary Society will hold its last meeting of the present school year, and a special program has been prepared.

The three cash prizes offered by the W. C. T. U. for the best, second best and third best essays on the subject, "The Value of Total Abstinence to a Life," will be awarded, and the winning essays read.

Rev. I. G. Michael, of the M. E. Church, South, has been invited to award the prizes.

The public is cordially invited to attend the exercises.

The Public Drinking Cup.

It goes without the saying that a man must drink water, and it is equally true a man cannot always be choicer in the place he drinks. These facts have led to the public drinking cup and offer the only excuse for its existence.

The dangers from the public drinking cup are almost as numerous as the cups. In a railroad station, for example, the healthy but thirsty child drinks immediately after the filthy tramp; the young mother, with the baby in her arms, is next after the consumptive; and the young boy follows the man in whose throat lurk the germs of disease. Every person who drinks from the cup while suffering from a germ disease, is liable to leave some of the germs upon the cup. The next person who drinks is equally as liable to catch the germs on his lips, and to contract the disease.

Sometime ago, a scientist became interested to know just how many germs could gather on a drinking cup. He took for his experiment a glass which had been used for nine days in a public school, and found, by the aid of a powerful microscope, that there were not less than 20,000 human cells or bits of dead skin on the glass. Some of these cells had as many as 150 germs clinging to them, and few less than 10 germs. In addition, the surface of the glass was covered with thousands of germs left in the smears of the saliva. Many of these germs were dangerous to health, and any of them could be taken into the system by drinking from the cup. As a matter of fact, that single glass had on it, not less than 100,000 germs of many varieties.

The only safe policy, is to leave the public drinking cup alone. Rinsing its edges with water improves but does not remove the dangerous condition. Private pocket cups and folding cups can be procured at small cost, and they will protect the user against the disease of others. Where it is necessary to use a public drinking cup, it is possible to greatly reduce the danger from it.

If the edge of the glass is placed slightly below the under lip of the drinker, in such a manner as not to touch the lip, the mucous membrane will not come in contact with the cup and will generally escape the germs on the cup. This trick is a simple one, and can be acquired with a little practice.
